THE LEGEND OF LOVER'S LEAP

[Compiled from authentic records not in the possession of the Maine Historical Society]

Many, many years ago, on the banks of the beautiful Kenduskeag, dwelt a noble tribe of redmen This was years before Valley Avenue was laid out, or Smith's slaughter house built Where now green fields and pleasant cottages mark the homes of a civilized people, and piles of oyster shells add beauty to the landscape, the grand old trees of the primeval forest reared their stately heads and beneath their mighty shade lived a stalwart race of warriors On the surface of the beautiful stream the Indian paddled his birch canoe in summer, and over its frozen bosom in winter hauled his light sled on his way to fish for tomcods off High Head

On the gently sloping bank with its green, mossy cushion, the Indian warrior wooed his dusky mate, his rapture undisturbed by visions of ice cream bills or prospective Opera tickets Here too, they warred, and ofttimes the silence of the forest was rudely broken as the shrill war whoop of some hostile tribe from beyond Pushaw Pond rung out in wild, unearthly tones upon the still night air And when the fight was over and the victory won, the warriors diverted themselves by tanning the scalps taken in battle, while their loving squaws lugged broken limbs and chunks of bark, and cooked their simple meal by the door of the open wigwam

Foremost among the braves of the tribe was Makomet called for short Nic-a washnootic, which was the correct aborigine for the Eagle eyed No eye was keener than his to spy the wary moose or deer amid the leafy covert or to aim the deadly shaft at the vital point No foot in all the tribe was fleeter than his in pursuit of the flying game No arm stronger to wield the fatal tomahawk in battle And after the fight, no voice more melodious than his, as he led the chorus when the victorious braves danced the graceful war dance, and sang the tuneful Bick tumbaganaw of the Kenduskeags Stern warrior as he was, and one whose eye never quailed before that of a foe, whose stout heart never knew fear he was tamed and vanquished by a fair maiden of the tribe The lovely Mahalis, which means in United States, "The-maiden-who-toes in," was the fair one whose beauty had subdued the heart of the proud young brave and brought him a captive to her feet Fairer was she than all the fair, among the daughters of the tribe. Tall and straight as an arrow, with long tresses whose inky blackness put to shame the raven's dusky wing, with features as bewitchingly beautiful as Mrs Lydia Pinkham's, and an eye which told of coquetry and mischief, no wonder that the brave Makomet was smitten with her charms, and was added to the long list of her ardent lovers Long time he loved in silence and told not his passion, but let concealment, like a worm i' the bud, pray upon his swarthy cheeks, and emaciate his countenance until he resembled the patent medicine cut labelled "before taking "

At last, however the emotions of his heart found vent in words, as, meeting the fair Mahalis near the brow of the cliff which rises perpendicularly hundreds of feet from the flowing stream, beneath the mellow beams of the hunter's moon, he told her all his love and in the tenderest words in the language, besought her to smile upon his passion and make him the happiest of his tribe Fervently she assured him (as she had many another before him) that his words found a ready echo in her heart, that she loved him, but that his suit was hopeless, for she was promised to another Moreover it had just occurred to her that they were cousins, which, according to the stern ethics of their tribe rendered their union impossible. She would always love him, but could never be his

Then, said the brave Makomet, "since we cannot be united here, let us leap together from the top of this cliff and together pass to the happy hunting grounds " And without waiting to hear the returns he seized her by one fair hand, and rushing with her to the edge of the cliff, made the fatal plunge. But when just upon the verge, the nimble Mahalis disengaged her hand and bounded back safely upon the rock, while, with a cry that disturbed the eagles in their craggy nests, and rung far up and down the valley, the unfortunate Makomet circumgyrated to the depths below. Next morning his body was found upon the beach near what is now the site of Morse's mill dam. When the fair Mahalis heard of this she heaved a sigh, and was heard to murmur in her gentlest tones that "he wasn't the first Indian that had been laid out by a mill —— site " Since then this cliff has ever been known as Lover's Leap, and yearly on the night when the hunter's moon is full, the death cry of Makomet is heard ringing out from the crag waking the echoes, and disturbing the repose of slumberers as far away as Six-Mile Falls.

EDWARD WIGGIN.

Maysville, Jan. 7, 1883.

NEW MAGAZINES.

The February ATLANTIC continues two of the features which made the January number one of the most remarkable ever issued. It contains the second part of Longfellow's dramatic poem Michael Angelo, introducing Michael Angelo, Benvenuto Cellini, Titian, and others, and showing the same vigor of mind and exquisite skill of expression which characterize all Longfellow's ... The Ancestral Footstep is ... chapter ... that it will deepen the regret that Hawthorne did not live to complete a story containing so many elements of curious interest. The Story of Joseph Lesurques, by S. E. Turner, is a narrative of a crime committed in France, and of the arrest and execution of an innocent man through mistaken identity,—the story which forms the plot of the play, The Lyons Mail Bradford Torrey contributes a remarkably interesting paper entitled With the Birds on Boston Common G E Woodberry writes with unusual discrimination and appreciation of Walter Savage Lander Henry L Nelson furnishes a very timely article entitled Some Truths about the Civil Service, showing how cabinet officers and others who desire to be regarded as staunch civil service reformers frequently violate in the grossest manner the first principles of a just civil service Maria Louise Henry discusses with intelligence The Morality of Thackeray and George Eliot, Richard Grant White, who always writes effectively on matters connected with the drama, contributes a paper of unique interest on Stage Rosalinds Prof E R Sill, of California, discusses frankly, yet candidly, Herbert Spencer's Theory of Education H H , who has recently visited the Pacific Coast, writes of Puget Sound and its vicinity The number contains several poems, reviews of new books, and short bright essays in the Contributors' Club Houghton, Mifflin & Co , Boston

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for February opens with a symposium in which six prominent theologians, representing as many religious denominations, give expression to their views upon the question of the Revision of Creeds Prof Alexander Winchell, in an article entitled The Experiment of Universal Suffrage institutes a profound inquiry into the essential conditions of stable popular government, which he finds to be, substantially, virtue and intelligence Bishop McQuaid writes of The Decay of Protestantism, and in essaying to prove his thesis, makes a very adroit use of the admissions of protestant writers The Political Situation is the joint title of two articles the one by Horatio Seymour the other by Geo S. Boutwell, who offer their respective views upon the causes of the recent overthrow of the Republican party An article by Dr D A Sargent, on Physical Education in Colleges, treats a subject of prime importance to the welfare of the youths in our higher educational institutions Finally there are two articles on The Standard Oil Company, Senator Camden of West Virginia defending that corporation against its assailants, and John C Welch setting forth the reasons for condemning it as a dangerous monopoly Published at 30 Lafayette Place New York

Cumberland

The Herald says Mr Chas Allen of Brunswick, who has charge of the gas works, fell by the slipping of a ladder at the gas house, last Sunday morning and broke both arms near the wrists and fell to the ground, where he lay an hour and a half on one of the extreme cold days of last week, when he was discovered and taken to his home by a neighbor

The Portland Press says Frank M Fogg ex councillor, has brought a suit against Spencer Rogers, of Portland, in the Supreme Judicial Court of Androscoggin county, for $10 000 damages for alleged false imprisonment This suit is the offspring of another suit tried in that city at the last term of the Cumberland county S. J Court, in which Mr Rogers was the plaintiff and Mr Fogg was the defendant The transactions between Mr Fogg and Mr Rogers date back to the time when Fogg removed his paper from Auburn to Portland

The Telegraph says Mr Moses Leavitt, of Harpswell Island was stricken with paralysis while riding on a load of hay, and fell to the ground, where he lay for an hour and a half, on one of the cold days of last week, when he was found by one of his neighbors and taken to his home Mr L. is a gentleman advanced in years and his escape from perishing by cold is remarkable.

Robert Fennemore made complaint at the Portland police station, Wednesday evening, that his son, Herbert Fennemore had been badly beaten at the North School by one of the teachers for some trifling disobedience of rules The boy is nine year old It is evident he has been badly bruised, for his thigh shows the marks of severe blows. He says they were inflicted with a leather strap having pieces of brass upon it. Mr. Fennemore insists upon an investigation

Franklin

As Mrs. Sophronia Smith, wife of Lemuel Smith, of Chesterville, was engaged at her work on Tuesday, her clothes caught from an open fire, and when found by her husband, she was sitting in a chair with her apparel, and her hair, entirely consumed, and life extinct. The broom with which she had been sweeping as well as the chair in which she was sitting were partially consumed, and would have soon communicated fire to the room She was about sixty five years of age, and has been an invalid for many years.

Kennebec

On the 9th inst., Ora, a two year old son of Manle and Dora Kelley, of Mt Vernon, tipped a quart of boiling water from the table upon his legs, scalding him so badly, from his knees to his feet that the skin came off when the stockings were removed. The little fellow is now doing as well as could be expected.

PROTECTION OF LIFE.

The chapter on chapter of horrors that have so recently and swiftly appalled the civilized world by the sacrifice of hundreds of human lives in burning buildings, in Milwaukee, in distant Poland and in St. Louis, ought surely to awaken public interest to the point of taking decided measures of prevention and protection from such awful calamities.

We are glad to see indications of practical action in this field in various parts of the country, and although our State is not so threatened as more densely populated sections, yet there has been and is a lamentable lack of authoritative provision against danger from fire in public buildings, such as hotels, theatres, public halls, churches and schoolhouses. Where space is so much more available in our communities as compared with the more crowded cities the temptation to neglect means of egress is not so great, and the number of really dangerous buildings is proportionately less. Still, it does seem that the provisions for the safety of hundreds and thousands of human lives, ought not to be left to the conscientiousness or caution of the owners of buildings, but that there should be adequate provision made by law for the inspection of and rendering safe all structures where human lives are liable to be endangered by neglect of proper safeguards.

This is a matter worthy of the careful consideration of the present State Legislature, and great good might be accomplished by some systematic measure governing this subject. Whether it would be best to invest the authority of inspection and supervision of public buildings in a State board, such for instance, as the Railroad Commissioners, or to make it the duty of the municipal officers to cause such inspection, is a matter to be considered; but some action may well be taken to render more secure the lives of the men, women and children exposed to danger in the crowds gathered in public buildings often constructed without proper regard to safety.

CLEAR OUT THE GAMBLING DENS

If it be true, as reported, that the conductors of some of the gambling dens, who became alarmed by the recent raid and shut up shop have concluded that the trouble "has blown over" and are resuming their nefarious operations, we hope the Police will see to it that our community is promptly ridden of these pests. Bangor should at once and effectively be made too hot for them.

THE GRANTS AND LOGANS.

The Lewiston Journal's Washington correspondent is responsible for the following bit of gossip:

If you want a piece of news," said a lady friend of mine, "I'll tell you that the Logans and the Grants are out at last! You know last winter, when Grant came out for Fitz John Porter, Logan was fighting the Porter bill and trying to push the bill putting Grant on the retired list. Logan thought it was mean in Grant to go back on him so but he didn't get mad, and when the Grants were here last winter the Logans were nice to them and tried to make it pleasant. They might never have quarrelled at all if it hadn't been for Senator Hoar. You know Senator Hoar was a little weak on the Porter question, but after Logan finished his great speech he got up in the Senate and said that the speech of the Senator from Illinois had removed his doubts, or something of that kind. Well, Grant heard of that, and he sent for Hoar, and told him it was nothing unusual for an officer to disobey orders when he thought he knew more than his superior—in fact it was quite common and proper. So Hoar voted for the Porter bill, and when Logan saw him do it last Thursday and heard how it was brought about, he was awfully angry.

He came home and eat his dinner, and it wouldn't digest because he was stirred up so, and he went up to the wedding of Senator Cameron's daughter in the evening and couldn't stay more than twenty minutes because he was sick."

I hear that the next day after the occurrence detailed to me by my fair friend, Mrs Logan on her rounds, called at Willard's Hotel. The Grants have taken rooms at Willard's, and the man who took Mrs. Logan's cards, said, "Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Grant is here." To which Mrs. Logan simply responded, "I know it," and left no card for the wife of the ex-President.

Grant was a famous man to look out for his friends during the eight years of his Presidency, but since that time his friendship has not been very valuable, in fact, it has been a serious handicap to some politicians. Logan is stronger and better off without it, and your correspondent congratulates him on his freedom. Now who will push the Grant retirement bill?

If it turns out that a certain ex Governor of Massachusetts met his political death in his attempt, plus General Butler, to defeat Senator Hoar's re election, his epitaph may well be: Here lies one who was not Long for this world, but was frozen out of it by a Hoar frost.—N. Y. Tribune.

Francis Murphy the famous temperance advocate, will soon return to Philadelphia, after an absence of nearly three years. His health is said to be badly broken.

The malicious, sensational reports about a "forged despatch" in connection with the election of Senator Hoar, are shown to have no foundation whatever. Mr. Crapo's friends in conference, deemed there was danger of Long's election by a Democratic swing to him on the first ballot, and to prevent it they decided to vote for Mr. Hoar, who was their own as well as Mr Crapo's preference as against the Butler slate.

Ex-Senator Thurman, of Ohio, knows how to sound a Democratic slogan that will awaken a response among the faithful. Here is his terse remark anent civil service reform, and it is calculated to make Senator Pendleton's political scalp feel extra hazardous.

"I am aware of the fact that the boys have been out in the cold for a long time, and I think they should be taken in and their toes warmed."

The mortality in the XLVII Congress has been singularly large. M. P. O'Connor, who was declared elected from the IId South Carolina District, died before the Congress assembled. During the first session there died Mr. Allen, of Missouri, General Hawk, of Illinois, and Judge Smith, of Alabama, who was declared after his death to have been entitled to a seat by the unseating of Mr. Shelley. Later, Mr. Lowe, of Alabama, and Senator Hill, of Georgia, died. Mr. Updegraff, of Ohio, died just before the reassembling of Congress and was buried on the opening day. Since then Mr. Orth, of Indiana, and Mr. Shackelford, of North Carolina, have followed, making nine in all, if Judge Smith is counted as a member. Mr. Herndon, of Alabama, is said to be nearly if not quite in a dying condition with consumption.

RELIEF FOR OUR SHIPPING.

REMARKS OF HON. THOMAS B. REED.

We copy from the Congressional Record of Jan. 10, the following timely and forcible remarks of Representative Reed in the House, in favor of the bill for the relief and revival of our shipping interests:

Mr. Reed—I can not expect in the time I have to make anything like an exhaustive argument on this subject. My purpose simply is to group together certain facts, which will be admitted on all sides, in order that we may understand what the evil is which we have to remedy, and what is the remedy which is actually proposed by this bill.

This bill does not deal with domestic commerce, because domestic or coastwise commerce has thus far taken care of itself. It deals solely with foreign commerce, and outside of a few provisions calculated to remove burdens from the ship-owner, it relates to the possible building of iron ships by American citizens.

I have listened to the remarks which have been made, especially by the gentleman from New York, [Mr Cox], with somewhat of surprise. In fact, the anxiety of free-traders in regard to commerce is something which, for my part, I can not understand.

The principle of free trade is that you should be allowed to buy whatever you want in the cheapest market, no matter where that market is, whether it be in this country or in a foreign country, and no matter whether it employs our laboring men or employs the laboring men of other lands. The doctrine is that if we can get the thing cheaper we make a profit, and that it is robbery to prevent us from getting things cheapest.

Now, if that be true in regard to manufactures, it ought to be equally true in regard to transportation. If the products of manufacture can be brought to this country for less freight in a foreign bottom, there would be no occasion, on free-trade principles, to inquire what flag floats at the masthead or what capitalists are gaining the profit of that transportation. It ought, on free trade principles to be enough to say that it is cheaper than we can do it, therefore we ought to let them do it. How anybody professing the principles of the gentleman from New York can reconcile it with his consistency to be anxious about transporting goods ourselves when somebody else can do it at a less rate, I fail to apprehend.

But I will tell you why in my judgment it is desirable for us to have a commerce. It is because we are not a combination of traders, it is because we are a nation, and we must fit ourselves as a nation for the contingencies of life. Among those contingencies is war. Every nation must be prepared for war. Not as my friend from Georgia [Mr. Hammond] says, with armaments, for, as he said a moment before in the selfsame speech, those very armaments are liable to precipitate war. But every nation must be prepared to get ready for war. This is to be accomplished not by having an enormous navy, but by having the capability of building an enormous navy promptly when required. Here you have the protection which the gentleman from Georgia wants, with an absence of the danger he deplores, and which I deplore with him. I believe with him that the only blessed time for this world will be when the sword is beaten into the plowshare and the spear into the pruning-hook, and there shall be war on earth no more. But we must take mankind as we find them, we must take the world as it is, we must keep ourselves in such a position that we may be ready to repel nations that attack us. That is the reason that we need a commerce, that is why we need to have sailors and ships.

But perhaps some one will say, "Why not buy your ships already made?" The answer to that is that when we need warships it may be at the moment we are at war with the very nation from which we have been buying our ships. We must have ship-yards, we must have plants in those ship-yards, we must so encourage ship-building that when war comes we shall be ready and equipped within ourselves.

Let me illustrate this question still further in the line of the remarks of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr Hammond]. He says that the South built the Merrimac, which ran into and overthrew our fleet. That may be true, I accept his statement for the purposes of this argument, but they only did that in a single instance. Had they possessed within their borders the capability of furnishing the munitions of war, I am very much afraid that this House would not have been adorned by the presence of my friend from Georgia.

Mr. Hammond, of Georgia—The gentleman is mistaken. He was there as a quartermaster, but I was not there at all. [Laughter]

Mr. Reed—Well I was not there at all. The gentleman need not be the least bit afraid. I never was under fire any more than he was, I was as safe during the war as he himself. [Laughter]

The doctrine I am at this moment arguing is put forth in the latest history of the Southern States, the author of which declares that among the disadvantages which those States had to contend against in the late war was that when the munitions of war which they bought abroad were exhausted and a cordon of ships surrounded their ports and the Northern armies swung across their country, they were beaten because they had not the materials for manufacturing the articles suitable for carrying on the war.

I say—and it is no discredit to them to say—that a smaller number of people less brave than they, have maintained their independence against greater odds than they had to meet, and it was because they were sufficient unto themselves. In the North we had manufactures of all kinds, we were ready to make munitions of war, we could do it, our people lost not a moment of employment. The war rather increased than limited our manufactures and our prosperity. I say that the very example which my friend from Georgia presents is an argument on our side. We ought to be in a condition to build our own war vessels.

What is this proposition for free ships? It militates against every proper principle. Free ships! Why, sir, is there anything else that is admitted into this country free of duty? If not one other manufactured thing is admitted free of duty, why should ships be so admitted? The difficulty with the shipping trade to-day is that citizens of the United States can make more money in some other business. Now, if you want commerce you must pay for it, you must pay for starting it, you must pay to put it on its feet. That costs something. Gentlemen ought either to be willing to step up and pay what is necessary to start this business, or else they ought forever to hold their peace about it. Let them not clamor one moment that we must have commerce, and the next moment say, "We will never consent to pay the price for it." Do not demand a thing and then refuse the indispensable means of securing that thing.

What is this bill? It is very simple. It removes from wooden ships certain onerous duties, like the three months' extra wages in foreign ports; and when perfected by the amendments it will give builders of iron ships a drawback which will enable them to build ships in this country, and compete with the ships built in England. But the nation's interest is in this—that it will cause to be built ship-yards so well equipped that if we should ever be in danger of war we shall have the means of building ships at once. As a matter of mere economy it is cheaper to-day to give to these ship builders this necessary drawback to enable them to make good ships than it is to build a vast navy and keep it on the seas. To so encourage iron-ship building in this country that we may order a navy when we require it is greater economy than to build a navy and keep it afloat for the indefinite number of years during which we shall never want it.

These considerations are general. I refrain from going any more into particulars; but I do feel that this question ought to be understood upon a proper basis. It ought to be understood that we are adopting these measures as a nation, not as an agglomeration of traders. We are doing it as a people. We are not doing it primarily as a matter of money-making, although we believe that when American ingenuity is fairly directed toward this end, and American manufactures duly encouraged, we shall after a proper period be able to compete pari passu with the nations of the world.

A gigantic ice bridge has formed below Niagara Falls, and the trees, shrubs and buildings in the vicinity being covered with frozen spray, the scene is wild and beautiful.

LIFE IN WASHINGTON.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL LIFE AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

That veteran observer and chronicler of the lights and shades of Washington life, Ben Perley Poore, writes as follows of one of the pillars of the Blaine column in 1876 and 1880, familiarly known as

"UNCLE PHILETUS" SAWYER.

One of the most reliable "wheel-horses" of the Republican team in the United States Senate is Philetus Sawyer, of Wisconsin. He was born at Whiting, Vermont, sixty-six years ago, and when seventeen years old he started West, carrying with him good health, good habits, integrity and industry. Beginning as a laborer in a saw mill, he soon became one of the leading lumbermen in Wisconsin and he was elected Mayor of Oshkosh, where he resided. In 1861 he was nominated for Congress, although there was a Democratic majority of 3,000 to overcome, and he was elected five times successively, his ten years' service covering the most important and eventful period of our national history. Mr. Lincoln had great admiration for what he used to call Mr. Sawyer's "horse sense," and often consulted with him in the dark days of the Rebellion. He took his seat in the Senate on the 4th of March, 1881, and is chairman of the committee appointed to examine the several branches of the civil service, besides serving on the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads and on the Census Committee. The possessor of a large fortune, Mr. Sawyer resides in the well known house originally erected by Senator Gwin, at the corner of I and Nineteenth streets, where Mrs. Sawyer has pleasant receptions, assisted by their daughters, Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. White, whose toilettes are always very elegant. Mr Sawyer is of medium height, quite portly, but very active in his movements.

SOCIAL LIFE—A BRILLIANT MASQUERADE.

Senator Miller, of California, gave a ladies' masquerade party last night to the friends of their daughter, Miss Dora, who received her guests as "California," her short white satin dress loaded with fruit, flowers, grapes, wheat, humming birds and butterflies. In striking contrast was Miss Brewster as "Night," in a black dress studded with stars, with bare neck and arms. Miss West, the daughter of the British Minister, was a "Neapolitan Fish-girl," with a short scarlet skirt, a blue jacket, a red cap, and her black hair hanging over her shoulders. Miss Slisbee, of Boston, after having a deal of fun in a crimson satin domino, appeared as a Roman peasant. Then there was Miss Bayard as a "Nautch Dancer," Miss Rachel Sherman as "Undine," Miss Pendleton as "a Lady of 1700," and scores of other fair ones in picturesque and often expressive costumes, all wearing masks. A quartette of young girls, about the same hight, were dressed exactly alike in black cloaks and hoods as "witches," and they intrigued the young men terribly, often changing places in the dance. At midnight a bugle call was the signal for unmasking, which gave rise to a deal of sport.

WEDDING BELLS

Invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. Samuel Dennis Warren, of Boston, to Miss Mabel Bayard, a daughter of the Senator from Delaware, on Tuesday next. The ceremony will be performed at the High Episcopal Church of the Ascension, and there will be a reception at the residence of Senator Bayard on Highland Terrace. Miss Blaine will be married on Shrove Tuesday, but the death of her aunt will prevent any festivities. On dit, that her brother, Mr. Walker Blaine, is to be congratulated. Miss Ume, a young Japanese lady who was educated in this country in the family of Mr. Charles Lanman, writes from her Japanese home that she has just attended the wedding of Miss Shinger, who was a student at Vassar, to one of her countrymen. She wore the Japanese dress at the ceremony. Miss Mamie Brewster, the adopted daughter of the Attorney General, will be married at the Church of the Epiphany in this city, on the 6th of February, to Mr. Robert Koontz, of Philadelphia. After the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of Attorney General Brewster, who, by the way, was fined $2 to-day in the Police Court for not having had his sidewalks cleared of ice.

DINNER PARTIES.

Senator and Mrs. Hale gave a large dinner party last night at his residence, the Sam Hooper house, at which President Arthur was a guest—Representative and Mrs. Crapo gave an elegant dinner party at Wormley's last night to ten New England friends, each one of whom found on the table a plate-card bearing a quotation from a favorite author.—A lunch party was given yesterday by Mrs. John Fields in honor of Mrs. and Miss McElroy, the sister and niece of President Arthur, and Mrs. Gen. Baird gave a "high tea" from 4 till 7.

To-day Mr. Justice Bradley gives a dinner party and there is another at Gen. Beale's in honor of Gen. Grant and Mr. Charles Crocker.

GAY AND FESTIVE SCENES.

Secretary and Mrs. Chandler will be "at home" on Saturday evenings until Lent, and Mrs. Chandler will be assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Kinsley.—There is a large reception this evening at the house of Secretary Frelinghuysen.—Among the evening parties next week, for which invitations are out, are those at the houses of Gen. Beale, Gen. McClellan, Mrs. Pollok, Justice Woods, Mrs. Laughton and Mrs. Turner.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1883, will be welcomed as one of the standard authorities for reference, and we find that several improvements have been added to what has long been an indispensable repository of information. Under the supervision of Hon. Edward McPherson, Clerk of the House of Representatives, it has been compiled with great care and thoroughness. The volume for this year gives the official vote upon every important election held in 1883 for State officers, U. S. Senators, Representatives and Delegates; the party platforms and Constitutional action in various States; abstract of public laws passed at first session of 47th Congress; lists of the Cabinet, various Executive, Diplomatic and Judicial officers of the United States; full lists of the members of the 47th Congress, the Representatives-elect to the 48th Congress and the Senators so far as chosen, politically classified; valuable statistical tables of imports and exports, with comparative tables of the trade of the country in 1880, '81 and '82 with each foreign country, statistics of banking and currency, of internal revenue, of public expenditures and appropriations; statistics of population, illiteracy, immigration, etc.; the public debt, and a summary of the entire electoral result comparing the vote in each State in 1880 with that cast in 1876. The Almanac is an invaluable compendium of useful information and is sent post paid on receipt of the small price of 25 cents.

It is proper to note here that the figures given of the election in this State for Governor and Congressmen are based on the earlier counted and not entirely accurate "copies" of the clerks' returns, which vary somewhat but not seriously from the official figures as canvassed and declared by the Governor and Council.

Within the last ten years flour has more than trebled as an article of export from the United States, and wheat has advanced eleven fold.

A Berlin correspondent of the New York Herald says that the German Government realizes that a blunder has been made in the proposed prohibition of American pork and would withdraw the projected measure if the United States would promise that the export of pork be examined before shipment.

PERSONAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

The Vicksburg Herald estimates that there are 40 pistols to every subsoil plow in the State of Mississippi.

South Carolina has twenty-six cotton factories, which give employment to 4,300 hands and produced last year $3,100,000 worth of goods. New mills will be running the present year and more are in prospect.

If Fitz John Porter is such a pure, unselfish and devoted Unionist as his friends represent him to be, why is it that every copperhead Democrat, and every ex-rebel in and out of Congress are howling for his restoration to the army? Why is it that all who are opposed to that restoration are composed exclusively of those who have never fired a shot at the old flag? That ought to decide the question of the guilt of this infamous traitor. It is the most natural thing in the world that all the copperheads and ex-confederates should feel grateful to Gen. Porter for having coolly aided the rebels to win the second battle of Bull Run.—Cleveland Leader.

A Washington despatch says: Senator Hill, of the Senate Post Office Committee, has made a report on the proposed postal note for sums of less than $5, which urges that the Senate take early favorable action in order that the Department may make arrangements for issuing the notes on or about July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. A fac-simile of the proposed note is printed with the report. It is about as large as a greenback, is to be issued for a fee of three cents without written application and made payable to bearer. Alteration of the amount is to be prevented by a system of punching in the style of long-distance railroad tickets. The committee believes that the convenience of this method of making small remittances would more than compensate for the diminished security as compared with the present money order. An extract is given from the last annual report of the Postmaster General in England, giving the result of one year's trial of postal orders substantially the same as the proposed notes. No less than 4,462,920 postal orders, amounting to £2,006,917, were issued. The average time they were in circulation was six days, showing that there was no foundation for the idea that they would be used as currency.

What the Report Shows.

The report of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company for Jan 1, 1882, shows the market value of all the bonds and stocks owned by the company to be $497,6?0 02 above their cost to the company, and its sales of real estate for 1880, 1881, and 1882, up to July 1, show that property costing the company, in 1879, $1,790,429 has been sold for $2,190,047, an excess of $399,618 above its then cost to the company, and $684,839 more than the Examining Commissioners then appraised it at.

This is the answer of time and of the facts to those who for their own purposes have so long misrepresented the value of the company's investments.—N. Y. Tribune.

has been thought to be extinct in this cold climate that Billings, the historian, has called, fit only for Bears and Injins. But such is not the fact, for the "woods are full of them." You may know some of them by these tokens. One of them professes that with a combination of Felt, Leather, and Brass, that they can warm the cold feet of a statue. Another would have you think that so and so is the best boot for Ladies, when 'tis a well known fact that

THE BURT BOOT

I supply the people of Bangor with,

Is Beyond all Other Makes in Beauty of Form, Finish and Lasting Qualities.

But the greatest of all of this ubiquitous bug's guises, is as the Cash Basis Crank. It is patent to any one that a cash store must naturally do a much smaller business than one that "chalks it down" to responsible parties, and therefore does a larger business, and who if he does make a loss once in a while, comes up smiling, which he can well afford to, as by accommodating all, his sales are much larger than the timid cash store. We have much to say on this subject, but space will not permit this week, more than as follows. Get any one's CASH PRICE you choose, and we will sell you on credit, (if you mean to pay) as low, and in some cases lower.

To gentlemen who wear fine shoes, I would like to show my specialty,

The "Curtis" Goods, and while on the "rostrum" would say that may our tongue cleave to the roof of our store if

will not warm an Ice Cake, if taken according to directions.

"A CAUSE FOR ALARM."

People's Five Cent Savings Bank of Bath, Temporarily Stops Payment.

Bath, Jan 20 A run on the People's Five Cents Savings Bank has caused that institution to stop payment The run has been light, but on account of prevailing fears depositors were becoming nervous and there was immediate prospect of a general clamor for money To protect the bank and its creditors the bank has early suspended payment until the excitement shall subside

The failure of the Pacific National Bank of Boston, in which this institution had money on deposit has been the chief cause of uneasiness Bank Examiner Humphrey is in town this morning in response to a telegram from the cashier

He states that the concern is solvent with a surplus of $15 000 above all liabilities There is no cause for alarm and the depositors, generally, are taking this view of the matter

The money on deposit in the wrecked Pacific bank is presumably safe, as the depositors of National Banks are liable to the depositors, but the prospect of a long and complicated litigation places it low in value on this particular item

The amount of deposits in the Five Cents Savings Bank is $400 000, which would be but a small percentage to individuals in any event Should the depositors precipitate matters the bank will have to scale down, per cent, but if allowed to go on and matters take their course with the good business prospects the man is confident that depositors will

CONGRESS—Second Session

Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan 20

President laid before the Senate letters from the Secretary of War transmitting a statement of the work and expenditures at the Springfield armory during the past year and also the reports of the officers of the Engineer Corps in relation to the improvement of the harbors of Savannah, Brunswick and Mobile and of several other rivers

Mr ... has introduced a bill granting a pension to ... DeLong

At the close of the morning business the Senate moved to postpone the calendar and proceed with the Post Office Appropriation bill, agreed to

The Post Office Appropriation bill was taken up The pending question was on the amendment changing the date when the reduction of letter postage from 3 to 2 cents shall take effect from January 1 to the first of July next

Mr ... said he would vote against the amendment, not so much because he was opposed to the proposed reduction of postage as because he was opposed to this sort of legislation upon an appropriation bill

Debate on the Post Office Appropriation bill continued until 1 o'clock when the tariff bill came up as the unfinished business. At Mr Plumb's request, Mr ... consented to its temporary postponement in order that a vote might be taken on an amendment offered by Mr ... striking out as new legislation, the section in the Post Office bill for the reduction of letter postage to two cents

The motion to strike out was lost, ayes 15,

Mr Cockrell offered an amendment providing for the free carriage of periodical publications

Mr Miller, of New York, offered two amendments one making the postage on drop letters one-half a cent an ounce and the other reducing the postage on drop letters to one cent per half ounce including delivery by letter carrier offices.

Mr Plumb made the point of order against these three amendments as new legislation, and they were ruled out

A portion of the bill directing an inquiry by the Postmaster General whether railway mail service was amended on motion of Mr Gorman, so as to extend the investigation to questions of advisability of a general fast mail service the manner in which it should be established the charges and estimated cost of the same

The bill as reported to the Senate, with amendments made in the committee, was agreed to except one appropriating $1,5 000 for necessary and special facilities on trunk lines on which Mr ... demanded a separate vote He had read an article from the Albany Argus, in substance that the fast mail from New York to Albany was for the benefit of New York papers The amendment was agreed to—ayes 32 nays ...

The Senate then passed a d the tariff bill was taken up Mr Morrill, by direction of the Committee on Finance, moved to change the duty on unpolished cylinder and common window glass one cent per pound, agreed to

Mr ... gave notice that he would move to reduce still further the duty on common window glass The amendment offered by Mr. Morrill and re... changing the duty on polished plate glass above 24 by 60 inches square to 50 cents per square foot, was agreed to Messrs Logan, Miller of New York and Conger complained that the ... of the Finance Committee reduced one-eighth of a cent per pound the duty on unpolished, cylinder, crown and common window glass, had been made in their absence and without their knowledge, and Mr. Sherman entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which it was adopted

Mr ... asked unanimous consent to consider the present schedule 'C' relating to metal. Mr. Ingalls said he would object unless it were distinctly understood that schedule "C" should be taken up after schedule "D," wood and wooden ware, should be disposed of. He did not wish to go to a reconsideration of the metal schedule until after consideration of the metal schedule Mr Morrill hoped to be able to take up the metal schedule on Monday or Tuesday next.

The Senate then proceeded to consider schedule "D" Mr Van Wyck moved to strike all out and put the articles covered by it on the free list and made a speech in support of the motion. Mr. Morrill, for the committee, offered the following amendment to the sugar schedule, which were ordered printed :

Providing that sugars not above 13 Dutch standard shall pay the duties laid ... will on those not above 16 Dutch standard, and those above 16 and not above 20 Dutch standard, shall pay 3 and ... cents per pound instead of 3 cents in the bill, also that all sugars above 13 and above 16 Dutch standard shall pay ... and 65-100 cents per pound. At 2 35 the Senate adjourned.

House.

The House, at 11 45, went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Page, of California, in the chair, on the Navy Appropriation

Mr. Page, of Fort Kent, is lumbering extensively this winter. His several crews aggregate 260 men and 75 horses.

Four or Five Hundred Passengers on Board

J F H Meyer, agent of the Hamburg American Line, was found at his home in Hoboken by a reporter He said the steamer Cimbria was commanded by Capt Hansen, a competent trustworthy man who has been in our employ for eight years She must have had between 400 and 500 passengers aboard and I fear from the cable despatches that the loss of life has been great The steamer carried eight life boats and was a 12 mile vessel She had a crew of 105 men Two years ago compound engines and new boilers were placed in her She was thoroughly inspected before every voyage

The Cimbria was a vessel of 3 025 tons She was built at Greenock in 1867 and was 326 feet long Barkum off which she sank is an island in the North sea, 26 miles N W off Embden, and belongs to Prussia

Some of the Details of the Disaster

LONDON—4 30 P M, Jan 21 The details of the Cimbria disaster are now being received and show the loss of life must have been fearful The Cimbria left Hamburg, Thursday with 380 passengers and a crew numbering 110 She ran aground before leaving Elbe, but got off with the flood tide with the assistance of the Hansa without having sustained damage and put to sea Friday morning she came into collision during a thick fog, off Barkum, with the steamer Sultan The Cimbria sank in a short time When the boat with 39 passengers arrived the company sent out the steamer Hansa and

Four of the Largest available steamers at Cuxhaven to search for the other boats of the Cimbria The West Indian steamer Bavaria also left during the night with a similar object The steamer Sultan which sustained heavy damage, has arrived in Elbe

Efforts of the Officers to Save Lives

HAMBURG Jan 21 The Cimbria sustained such severe injuries that it at once became apparent she must sink almost immediately The officers therefore did all in their power to save lives Without a moment's loss of time the life belts were distributed among the passengers and the order given to lower the boats. This, however in consequence of the vessel's heeling over on her side was found very difficult on one side and absolutely impossible on the other As the second officer was still engaged in cutting spars loose so there should be as much drift wood as possible for the people to cling to when the inevitable foundering occurred,

The Vessel Went Down

under his feet He seized a spar but as several other persons clung to it he was obliged to let go and he swam to the boat. This boat was subsequently picked up by the Theta and the second officer steered the Theta to Cuxhaven Seventeen other persons have been saved by the steamer Diamont from Wiser lighthouse, making 66 thus far known to have been rescued A survivor from the Cimbria makes the following statement "The weather was clear up to 1 15 A M, but the fog then set in which continued and increased in intensity The engines of the Cimbria kept full speed until 1 30 A M, then at half speed until 2 A M, after which they were kept at slow speed About ten minutes past two the whistle of another steamer was heard and the engines of the Cimbria stopped instantly The Sultan's green light was, not observed until she was only 50 feet off from the Cimbria The latter was struck abaft the first bulkhead on the port side and she heeled over to the starboard and speedily sank The Theta picked up one of the Cimbria's boats at two o'clock Saturday afternoon and arrived at Cuxhaven about six o'clock A reporter boarded the Sultan, but both the captain and crew absolutely refused to give any information The captain has made a statement before the British consul, but this is inaccessible The Sultan has a large hole in her bow seven feet above the water line

Owing to the Fog,

The Number of Lost Estimated at Three Hundred.

BERLIN Jan 21 Besides the 39 survivors landed at Cuxhaven and 17 at Weser lighthouse another vessel has landed 11, but their names have not yet been ascertained. The number of lives lost is estimated at fully 300 The passengers were mostly emigrants from East Prussia Among them were six American Indians who had been on exhibition in Berlin for some time

NEW YORK, Jan 21 Kernhardt & Co. general agents of the company have received a cable message saying the Cimbria had 23 cabin passengers, 381 steerage and 92 crew.

[The ill-fated Cimbria is the same steamer that came into South West Harbor in 1878 and was visited by so many of our citizens She arrived April 28, 1878, and remained a number of months. The steamer was chartered by the Russian Government at the time they were at war with Turkey, and brought 600 seamen and 60 officers, under command of Count Grifenbug, to this country to man three vessels of war which were built, or rebuilt, at Philadelphia The Cimbria was then commanded by Captain Bodenhausen. They came to South West Harbor as it afforded them a quiet spot in which to hold their men.—ED WHIG]

AFFAIRS IN IRELAND.

TRIAL OF SUSPECTS

For Conspiracy to Murder Officials.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20. The twenty-one persons recently arraigned here were before the Police Court to-day, charged with conspiracy to murder officials. The court room was crowded. Great discrimination was exercised in the admission of citizens. There was a large crowd outside.

The name of the informer arrested is Farrell He acknowledged having taken part in the plot to assassinate a juror He swore that one of the prisoners named Hanlon informed him that he had taken part in the attempt to murder Field, that Brady stabbed Field and that Kelley also participated in the affair. Farrell also testified that a three pence was collected weekly from Fenians to purchase arms

He said that the city had been marked into districts and military inspections were held occasionally at which most of the accused were present At one of these meetings one John Devoy, who said he came from America, presided The organization he said had existed for some years

Farrell said Picked Men

formed an assassination committee They were ignorant of each other Daniel Curley gave him (Farrell) a revolver and told him to stop Mr Forster's carriage opposite the Ellis quay when Jim Kelley and Joe Brady would do the remainder The plot failed through a mistake Farrell identified Kelley, Brady, Curley, Maloney, Dwyer and Bayer, all of whom were present in the prisoner's dock, as having been present on Ellis quay when the abortive attempt was made to waylay Mr Forster

Curley was very much vexed at the failure. Farrell said that Brady, Kelley and Rankin, the last of whom is now in Limerick, followed Mr Forster's carriage in a cab on another occasion and that McMahon, who was lately accidentally shot was assisting by watching on foot All the prisoners were remanded for a week.

Work of Fenians

GLASGOW, Jan 21 The largest gasometer here exploded last night The damage is estimated at £10,000 Eight persons were injured by the explosion The greater portion of South Glasgow was darkened in consequence of the destruction of the gasometer and a panic was nearly caused in the theatres Subsequently the shed belonging to the Caledonian Railway Company was blown up The explosions are supposed to have been the work of Fenians

A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

Twenty-one Persons Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 21. A despatch from Tehichipa concerning the accident to the southern express train, near there yesterday, confirms the death of Mrs Downey and says ex Gov Downey is badly hurt, but will recover Only a few passengers left here on the train A number got on at way stations, but as the list is not made up until Mojave is reached a full list cannot be made except by personal inquiry A despatch from Los Angeles says It is now ascertained that at the time the train broke loose and ran down a grade the air brakes had been taken off and the men who tended the hand brakes were away from their posts relighting lamps The train gathered headway quickly and was soon dashing down the grade at the rate of a Mile a Minute.

At a sharp curve of the road a coach and smoker, which were ahead, broke the coupling and separated from the rest of the train making the turn safely The sleepers and mail express and baggage cars were dashed against a high bank and then thrown back rolling down an embankment The lamps and stoves at once set fire to the wreck, which was instantly in a blaze The porter as he and wife, who occupied the drawing room of one of the Sleepers, were awakened by the crash, they succeeded in getting out without injury but of the sixteen other occupants of the car not one is believed to have escaped Meantime the occupants of the coach which kept on down grade succeeded in stopping it thereby

Saving the Lives

of some forty occupants of that and the smoking car They immediately walked back to the scene of the accident, but found only the smouldering remains of the train, and the few who escaped with their lives lying bruised and bleeding in the darkness, shivering in the piercing cold night air or rendering assistance to each other Relief soon arrived from Tehichipa, four miles distant, and as soon as possible medical attendance was sent from Sumner and Bakersfield, and subsequently from Los Angeles Search for the dead bodies soon showed

That Twenty-one Persons

perished Eleven were beyond all recognition, only the headless bodies and charred limbs being found All the bodies and fragments of bodies were placed in coffins, the wounded removed to a baggage car and on the arrival of the relief train from Los Angeles were sent to that city

THE WEATHER.

Another Severe Storm.

CHICAGO, Jan 20 A driving snow storm began at eight o'clock this morning, and will probably continue all day The weather is very cold and tempestuous generally throughout the Northwest. Blockades on railroads in Minnesota and Manitoba are reported The storm of yesterday was very severe, but has subsided somewhat, and it is expected that trains will run regularly to-day

MAINE NEWS.

Serious Phase of the Strikers' Riot at Brockton.

BROCKTON, Jan 20. The strike of the lasters at George E. Keith's factory, Campello, assumed a rather serious phase this morning. Upon the platform of the depot at the arrival of the 7 o'clock train were gathered between 15 and 20 union strikers, whose probable intention was to prevent the going to work of a few non unionists whom Mr. Keith had hired, and who were to arrive in the train. Mr. M. Holmburg, foreman of the factory, took charge of the men as they stepped from the train, and endeavored to pass through the crowd of strikers, who formed in line on either side of the platform. He was suddenly knocked down by a powerful blow, and as he lay prostrate, several of the crowd pitched in and brutally pounded and kicked him without mercy He received terrible bruises about the head and body, and was finally allowed to depart His injuries however, although serious, are not critical The new arrivals escaped without injury Mr Keith states that he anticipates another outbreak at the factory to day, and will at once apply for protection from the police

ARREST OF A ROBE THIEF On several occasions during the present winter robes have been observed as missing from the livery stable of Lemuel Nichols on Central street These depredations have been conducted systematically, and have extended over a period of time, fully three months in duration The matter was placed in the hands of Marshal Reed and a thorough investigation was commenced, resulting in the recovery of most of the robes and the arrest on Saturday of the thief The perpetrator of the robbery proves to be John T Ryder, a fellow who was at one time in the employ of Mr Nichols and who was working at the American House stable when captured, although he had been at the latter place only a few days. There were taken in all some seven or eight buffalo robes worth from $8 to $15 each and a lap robe Ryder had taken these one at a time and sold them to different individuals, among whom were George I Brown, Frank Dougherty, James Patterson and Frank P Wood Ryder remained in the station house over Sunday and will to-day be arraigned before Judge Brett

MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY The standing committee of the Maine Historical Society met last week Arrangements were made for a spring meeting of the Society, in Portland, on the 30th of next May On that occasion papers will be presented by J W Porter, Esq, of Bangor, Joseph Williamson, of Belfast, Dr Charles E Banks, of Portland, Oregon, and others The necessity of printing the York records was discussed, and it was agreed that these perishable and perishing documents on which rest most of the land titles in the State, should be put in print without delay, and that the work is of so much public consequence that the State may properly be asked to take it in hand Mr James P Baxter reported that the volume of Trelawney Papers will probably be out this summer In that case, the field day of the Society will be held on Richmond's Island Arrangements were made for the publication of the proceedings of the Society, and a proposition was made looking to the compilation of a catalogue of printed books, pamphlets and articles relating to the history of the State.

A FINE ELEVATOR. The enterprising and progressive hardware firm of Rice & Skinner have placed in their well-known establishment, on West Market square, a model elevator which will be of material assistance in enabling them to better accommodate their increasing business The elevator is from the manufactory of Otis Bros. & Co., Yonkers, N Y, and is supplied through their New England agents, Q. N Evans & Co, of Boston, being set up under the superintendence of Mr H A Walker. The elevator runs from the basement to the upper floor, five stories in all The power is furnished by a hydraulic engine which is supplied with water through a 2 1-2 inch galvanized pipe extending from an 8 inch main clear to the cylinder of the engine The cylinder is 22 feet in height and has an internal diameter of 8 1 2 inches. The car is 5 feet 11 inches by 4 feet 1 inch in size, and weighs 700 pounds. It is only customary to have two wire ropes but in this instance four wire ropes have been used, thus making it exceedingly strong. At each floor Byers & Taylor's self-closing elevator-hatchway guards have been introduced. Special mention should be made of the safety appliances which are employed, whereby every possibility of danger is doubly guarded against. The arrangement is so perfect that if the elevator moves faster than a given rate of speed it stops itself almost immediately On Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a WHIG representative, a test was made of the new elevator, and the car, weighing about 700 pounds, with nineteen kegs of nails thereon, and two men, making in all about a ton and a half, was rapidly raised. It runs with smoothness and noiselessness and the journey from the basement to the upper story is made with quickness. Only about thirty-five pounds pressure will be required in running the elevator, ordinarily. The piping was done by Leighton, Davenport & Co., and the carpenter work by W. & L. Cutter.

The committee appointed by the Court in Waldo county on appeal from the County Commissioners, who laid out a road through the grounds of the Northport Wesleyan Grove Campmeeting Association, made their report at the January term, reversing the action of the Commissioners, and the report was accepted.

A HANDSOME RESULT. The finance committee of the class of '83 of the Bangor High School have finally decided how much was made at the High School Fair, held in Norumbega Hall last month. The net proceeds amount to $990 40, which is a very handsome sum and reflects great credit upon all who assisted in making the fair such a great success

REMARKABLE RECOVERY Mrs. Drolette, the woman who received such terrible wounds on her throat, with a razor, and whose life was despaired of for many days, has made such rapid improvement during the past fortnight that she has now almost entirely recovered She is able not only to be around the house but does her housework without assistance It is a most remarkable recovery

A NEW SEASIDE RESORT Fletcher's Cove is a seaside resort which is rapidly coming into favor with Bangor people It is situated in Penobscot Bay on Long Island and is distant only a few miles from Islesboro. It is expected a steamboat wharf will be built there during the coming season Mr F O Buzzell, Mr E H. Tebbetts and Mrs E H Fogg all of this city have decided to build summer residences there this year and these, increased probably by other cottages, will be completed in season for occupancy during the heated term

AMUSEMENTS

The German Professor

An audience of too limited proportions greeted the Florence Dramatic Company on Saturday night at the Opera House, thus demonstrating once again in a forcible manner that Saturday of all the evenings in the week is the least favorable to draw good houses in Bangor In "The German Professor" an opportunity was given to see Mr Florence in a role entirely different from that of the preceding evening and one would not be apt to recognize in the polished and dignified Prof Opstein the Hon Bardwell Slote of "The Mighty Dollar" The scene of the piece is at the seaside and the trouble revolves largely around the attempts of Prof Opstein to marry off his daughter and neice, but it closes by the Professor as well as the young ladies drinking the cup of connubial bliss Mr Florence assumes the character with masterly power and delights all by his clever acting The lady and gentlemen parts were well taken, Miss Greybrooke especially scoring a splendid triumph The costumes of the ladies were magnificent The applause was frequent and long continued Mr Florence will ever be cordially welcomed in our city and Bangor will be sure to give him an enthusiastic reception when he again visits us.

Denman Thompson To-night,

Denman Thompson and company will arrive from Portland this morning on the Pullman train, and this evening at the Opera House will present for the fourth time in this city the ever welcome "Joshua Whitcomb " The company is about the same as last season, and includes all of the old favorites The sale of seats has been large and the usual full house will, doubtless, be on hand to-night

Agricultural.

Clover, by the large drafts it makes upon the subsoil and the atmosphere, always improves the land.

Spring work can be materially advanced by doing many things now that would otherwise have to be done at the opening of spring.

This is a good season in which to study up the most improved methods of culture, with the view of successfully practising them as soon as the spring opens.

The drought has so seriously affected the wheat crop of Australia that farmers of this country need not fear Australian competition the coming year.

The demand for good horses increases despite the enlarged use of steam machinery in all kinds of business. There are probably more horses now used to cart produce to and from railroad stations than were ever required for the stage routes that the railroads superseded. Yet, when the steam engine came into general use for transportation, many believed that the days of horse breeders were over

Although butter alone is nearly indigestible, yet the relish that good butter imparts to bread makes it more healthful than the bread alone would be. The human stomach will digest almost anything that is eaten with a relish, though scarcely anything that is not. This is a point which the objectors against the use of butter should carefully note. This is also true in feeding stock, as well as in supplying the wants of man

English experience shows that the quantity of farmyard manure produced in feeding cattle may vary from one-half to three-fourths of the amount of food consumed and the straw used as litter A ton of dry food, such as grain, cake, hay or straw, yields, when fed, about two tons of dung. A ton of dry green food, however, such as clover, vetches, mangel, turnips or cabbage, does not afford, on an average, more than half a ton of dung

The best use that can be made of liquid manure is to return it to the dung heap, where means should be devised for its absorption or retention If allowed to flow away from the cattle sheds or the manure heap, it should be collected in tanks. From the collecting tanks it may be distributed over the land by a watering cart, when the area is small. Liquid manure is chiefly valuable for the rapidity with which it produces its effect It is well adapted to tillgit, sandy soils, but of far less value on heavy clays. It is also more suitable for grass and root crops than for grain crops

The potato, says Peter Henderson, like all robust-growing vegetables, can be grown with varying success on soils of all kinds and in all conditions of fertility, but the soil best suited to it is a sandy loam In all heavy soils it is more subject to disease and the flavor also is much inferior In breaking up good pasturelland, the decaying sod answers sufficiently well for the first year in lieu of manure Manure is applied either in rows or hills, or broadcast over the hills and plowed in, the latter in most cases being preferable If the soil is good, but little manure is required If highly enriched soil the plants are more liable to disease than when grown in soil that is naturally good The best fertilizers are those of a dry or absorbent nature, as plaster, lime, superphosphate of lime and bone dust For wet soils these are particularly beneficial, as they not only promote growth, but prevent disease Plant as early in spring as the ground can be had in fair working order, in hills or ridges, about three feet apart covering a light, warm soil is about four inches deep, but in cold, wet situations, two and a half or three inches will be sufficient

To Please Her Husband.

Were the Words of a Good Lady, Mrs. Hawkins who has long Suffered the Pain Common to Chronic Rheumatism A Woman's Patience and Fortitude well Shown.

Your reporter found Mrs. Hawkins at 31 Exchange St., New Haven, Conn "About four years ago," she said, "I was then a resident of Brooklyn, N Y I went over one morning to the Jersey City depot to see some friends off who were leaving for the west. There was a strong draft of air in the depot, and as I stood by the train talking to my friends, I caught a severe cold I had no more than reached my home again when I was taken with a rheumatic chill and have not left in. The outcome of all was that rheumatism settled all over me. I was entirely helpless From this I have never recovered You see my hands, which alone they are in. There is still much swelling, and my limbs are very bad While I remained in Brooklyn I tried all sorts of remedies but I could never gain any relief My physician said it was no use. I grew very thin and lost all my strength Finally, after coming here to Grantly my husband I began to take Dr Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and my general health has been better than ever before I am stronger, have an excellent appetite, which I did not have for a long time It has helped my rheumatism and with a thorough trial I am in hopes of recovering completely "

Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY has been successfully used by thousands. It will build up a system which has been run down by disease, and I is the thing for the student and literary man to have at hand and should be in the home of every one troubled with dyspepsia, biliousness, and kidney complaints. It is economical, safe and pleasant. Buy it and try it

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. E. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late ex-mayor, Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E 54th St., New York, May 10, 1882.

Messrs J O AYER & Co., Gentlemen

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so insensibly, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh, and catarrhal cough, my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above named disorders My appetite improved almost from the first dose short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, in fact its now excellent I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised I took it in small doses three times a day and used in all less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good

Yours respectfully Z P WILDS "

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

clears, enriches and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and low state of the system

LOG ROLLING.

While Wrestling with a Fallen Tree a Lumberman Receives Consequential Damages.

While on a hunting excursion in the great coal and wood region near Carbondale, Pa., the writer met William Coll, a lumberman Accustomed to life and labor in the forest from early manhood, he was a true Knight of the Axe. Many a tree had fallen before his ringing strokes, and fleets of rafts had borne away to market the sawed products Coll is a character, and if Oscar Wilde is right in saying that all movements in unmanored labor are grace ul, our friend William, stripped for his work, and attacking a tree as Richard I assaulted the heavy doors of Front de Bœuf's Castle, must have presented a admirable picture

One day, however —but let him tell the story himself as he told it to me

"I was out in the woods, you know, trying to start a log down a hill Thinking I could get a better purchase on it from the lower side, I tackled it there with my log-rolling hook and threw my weight on the lever She started, she did, but as luck would have it, before I could get out of the way, she rolled right over me If it hadn't been for a lot of small limbs and brush lying in the road, which filled her up, she'd a crushed me flat as it was, I got up without a broken bone, but with some mighty bad bruises."

"Then you were all right," said his auditor

"No; by a blamed sight, stranger I took cold rheumatism set in, and if I hadn't heard of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS and used em, it's my opinion I should never have made another chip fly. But the Capcine took hold quick, and I'm 'bout as good as new But the one thing you kin calkilate on —I shall never wrastle with another log unless I have the advantage of the ground For, as I told you before, if it hadn't been for them brushes I'd been smashed so, you could a sold me for a door mat "

The Capcine is the thing for Rheumatism It doesn't keep you waiting. The word CAPCINE is CUT in the centre of the genuine Price 25 cents
